

Group: IMTH

Degree: Master

Course: Thesis Writing

- 1. Credits: 3
- 2. Grade & Semester: Second year, first semester
- 3. Prerequisites: N/A
- 4. Course objectives:

This course aims to build student understanding of the American Psychological Association citation and documentation style and outlining the criteria for evaluating sources and the information contained in these sources. Through the skillful use of language, which acknowledges the audience the course further aims teach students how to organize an argument, highlighting the types of support that can be used for these arguments.

- 5. Course description/outline:

Students will write extended essays based on documented research. The course will also focus on information literacy, specifically students' ability to access, evaluate, and use information effectively to complete a variety of written assignments. Students will gain additional practice in audience analysis, critical reading and thinking and writing for professional and academic purposes.